The Community Newsletter, as far as I know has always been published by the Karoonda East Murray District Council, and when the Council asked the Mallee Business Association whether we would be interested in producing the newsletter, we saw this as an enormous task to undertake by a small band of volunteers. Gratefully Greg Turner volunteered himself to take on this new role, and this is our very first newsletter published by Mallee Business Association.

I have heard that many people within the community may not even read the newsletter, so to create more interesting content we are relying on you to submit an article.

A challenge is put to all community groups within the area to take the opportunity to submit an article, "What is happening within your organization?"

Community articles by the individuals will also enhance the quality of content, gathering articles from the archives, history photos, articles, personal profiles, funnies, anniversaries, birthday celebrations, maybe in the future a classified section. We look forward to receiving any of these.

Advertising will continue as normal for now, but we will keep you informed as we look at revamping sizes to create a more streamlined edition.

If anyone would like to give feedback on what they would like to see in the newsletters, please contact anyone on the list below.

Mallee Arts Karoonda

Mallee Arts Karoonda would like to congratulate all artists who participated in our second ever SALA pop-up gallery "Art Of the Mallee" which was on display in the old Catholic Church hall in Peake Street, Karoonda.

For the month of August on Fridays & Saturdays, we showcased work from 19 artists in a wide range of mediums including; scrap metal art, drawing, acrylic/oil/watercolour painting, print making, textile and digital art.

The gallery was a great success with many locals and visitors taking the opportunity to come through to view the art we had to offer, and the feedback was overwhelmingly positive.

The quality of work was absolutely outstanding and this saw 9 original pieces of art being snapped up for sale!

Thanks goes also to everyone who assisted with the set up of the gallery, as well as the many visitors for their kind donations. Monies received assisted in covering a portion of the SALA Registration fees as well as the gallery set up costs.

We look forward to participating in future SALA festivals and can't wait to bring more fantastic art to our community and visitors alike!

Over the past five decades, the practice and use of soil testing has become widely accepted in agribusiness both by farmers and industry. The potential for increased yields and profits has been the obvious motivator for the keen interest in soil testing.

Soil test reports will generally provide you with appropriate fertilizer application recommendations for nitrogen, phosphorous, potassium and limestone. Soil testing also allows for determining the micronutrient requirements of your crop. If you apply too little fertilizer, your crop yields and returns will be lower. Too much fertilizer will waste time and money and risk environmental damage due to nutrient runoff.

Consequently, soil testing provides a farm management tool with a potential benefit to the farmer of increased yields, reduced operating costs and superior environmental risk management. Additional benefits include; improved crop maturity and quality, higher tolerance to disease and pest damage, and increased growth.

MR Landscape Board welcomes new members

The Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board welcomed two new members, Sandy Iosefellis and Caroline Phillips. They were appointed to the landscape board by the Minister for Environment and Water last month.

The new members join current Chair Dianne Davidson AM and landscape board members Andrew Biele, Greg Cock, Jim Godden and Jason Size.

Sandy Iosefellis is a Riverland resident and horticulturalist who is company director and partner of FRESH Pty Ltd, supplying fresh produce across Australia. Her background knowledge extends to tourism, social services, and small business.

Ms Iosefellis has more than 25 years of experience working with boards in the private and government sectors. She has supported the Murraylands Riverland Local Government Association, worked for Regional Development Australia Murraylands Riverland (RDAMR) and recently became an RDAMR Board member.

Ms Iosefellis enjoys the regional lifestyle and aspires to add value to the community and region for current and future generations. She is looking forward to supporting a region focused on a viable and resilient production industry with strong communities and sustainable landscapes.

Caroline Phillips is a Murraylands resident and is the Mayor of Karoonda East Murray Council, serving as an elected member for the past ten years. She is keen to build and develop local communities, and has extensive experience working with the South Australian Tourism Commission, including holding the position of Regional Tourism Manager in the Murraylands and Riverland regions of SA.

Ms Phillips has worked in marketing and communications in the public and private sectors for more than twenty years. She holds professional qualifications in Marketing and a Bachelor of International Business.

Ms Phillips is currently a board member of the Tourism Industry Council of South Australia, Netball South Australia and Murraylands Riverland Local Government Association.

Ms Phillips also works as an independent marketing consultant servicing small business clients across regional South Australia and is a partner in a dryland farming venture with her husband Troy.

Ms Davidson welcomed the two new members and said their breadth of experience and knowledge would complement the existing landscape board members.

"We look forward to working with our new members who provide a diverse range of skills and expertise, and I congratulate them on their appointment," Ms Davidson said.

"We are all strongly committed to managing our regional landscape, in close collaboration with our community and many partners to ensure our local landscapes and industries are thriving, resilient and sustainable."

Investigations helping concerns over dry saline land impacts

Over the past 18 months, the Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board, together with Insight Extension for Agriculture's (AIR) Chris McDonough and the Department of Primary Industries and Regions SA's Brian Hughes have been investigating the rising issue of dry saline land throughout the Northern Mallee and Murray Plains regions locally and also areas on the Eyre Peninsula.

This project is supported by the Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board through funding from the Australian Government's National Landcare Program and the landscape levies.

Concerns over the growing impacts of dry saline land degradation across the Murray Mallee and the Eyre Peninsula have increased in recent years.

A survey commissioned by the Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board and AIR Eyre Peninsula was conducted between December 2020 and January 2021 and distributed to farmers through various networks for online completion. One hundred surveys were completed, including 43 from the Murraylands region.

Dry saline land or "magnesia patches" describe areas in paddocks that have become saline in the surface layer and toxic to plant growth. This results in bare, unproductive patches of ground. They are not driven by the underlying effects of groundwater, stream flows or perched water tables. The impacts can be highly detrimental to farming practices across a range of landscapes.

Following the survey, soil testing was carried out at many properties over various sites and landscapes, measuring pH and salinity at multiple depths to gauge the characteristics of the salt within the soil profile.

Two farmer case studies were developed with more detail about the individuals farming systems, agronomics, livestock, grazing and what treatments and or applications the farmer has used on the issue.

This investigation showed that dry saline land affects a wide range of soil conditions and appears in vastly different landscape environments. Patches become highly saline in areas that have moderate to high levels of transient subsoil salinity. They are also highly conducive to capillary rise of moisture and evaporation, leaving the salts behind on the surface. This is exacerbated by environmental and land management conditions such as long hot summers, periods of drought and the loss of surface plant growth and/or vegetative cover.

The next phase of this project will be looking into treatments and management methods to rejuvenate the dry saline patches in much more detail.

If you think you may have dry saline patches on your property, please phone Zoe Starkey, Regional Agriculture Landcare Facilitator Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board at the Murray Bridge office on: 8532 9100.

To support our farmers the Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board and their partners have been conducting investigations into concerns over the growing impacts dry saline land degradation.

The Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board were recently the successful recipients of the Australian Government's Future Drought Fund-NRM Drought Resilience Program Grants.

The Board received $197,000 to identify and measure current regenerative practices, and assess opportunities for the adoption of regenerative practices to increase resilience in the region's low rainfall farming systems.

Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board Sustainable Agriculture Team Leader Tony Randall said this is an excellent opportunity to work with low rainfall growers to, localise the relevance of regenerative agriculture, and enable growers to identify the opportunities they see to incorporate regenerative practices into their farming systems.

"The funding will help us to work closely with our growers from across the South Australian and the Victorian Mallee and to improve soils without making costly mistakes," he said.

"The experiences of the past four dry years have driven the need to investigate regenerative agricultural practices that contribute to increasing carbon storage and turnover and enhancing soil health.

"We want to work with growers to determine what regenerative farming might look like in a low rainfall mixed farming system, and how this can complement existing practices that provide resilience against drought.

Mr Randall said we are excited to be delivering this project in partnership with CSIRO, Birchip Cropping Group (BCG), Mallee Sustainable Farming (MSF), and the Mallee Catchment Management Authority (Mallee CMA) who bring a broad range of skills, knowledge and expertise to the project from across the South Australian and Victorian Mallee Regions.

This project is supported by the Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board, CSIRO, Mallee Sustainable Farming, Birchip Cropping Group, and the Mallee CMA through funding from the Australian Government's Future Drought Fund NRM Drought Resilience Program Grants and the landscape levies.

KAROONDA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

It has been a busy few months with a number of exciting projects completed or nearing completion. The old Karoonda manual telephone exchange has been relocated into the shed and the red phone box has been painstakingly restored by a very dedicated group of members. The telephone exchange was closed in August 1988. It was stored in the Barwell Bull railway carriage for many years and now has a new lease of life in its new special display area. The timber on the Cash Store has been repainted and power installed in the shed

We have been fortunate to have been given a number of items of significance from present and past community members:

A barometer which belonged to Jack Weir has been donated by his son Max Weir. This in itself brings a story. Jack was employed by Jack McCraith who made an empire from rabbits where Karoonda became the hub of his activities in the 1950's. Jack coordinated the trappers and did the buying.

Joyce Weir has donated several items including a Kodak No2 Autographic Brownie camera which allowed white writing to appear on photographs early in the twentieth century. and an embroidered apron. Other donations have been a wedding dress from Mrs Dorothy Blacket, christening dress from Mrs Joan Borman, bibles from Mrs Pat Anderson, a wool table from Norman Foale and an antique wooden work bench from Adrian Growden. Ian Murdoch delivered an amazing collection of shearing handpieces, wool samples and several photos of local significance.

We appreciate that people both inside and outside our community are donating items of historical significance to our collection.

Our projects for the year include painting of the pump shed and Hood house and roofing of the Barwell Bull train carriage along with continued sorting of things in the park and setting up of displays in the shed. There are members interested in working on an old Dodge buckboard which belonged to GJ Clark and Co, to make it presentable for display once a suitable venue for a workshop can be found. Anyone with mechanical and woodworking skills would be most welcome to join the group.

There is still much to do and we welcome any time that anyone can give to get these projects completed.

There have been a number of groups visit the park - members of the Mannum Historical Society, Liz Rivers from The Grey Nomads Awards Group and the Mount Lofty Bushies Motor Home Group.

Meetings are held on the third Tuesday of the month in the Institute meeting room and new members are welcome. Working bees are held on weekends, usually with a barbeque lunch for volunteers giving members a chance to socialise and have some down time. Watch our Pioneer Park Facebook page and notice board for working bees.

THE PARK IS OPEN TO THE PUBLIC ON WORKING BEE DAYS.
